THUESDAY, OCT. 28, 1658. We are a good deal carprised to learn, as th lativa to the case of the abduction of Horace Bell from Indiana by men from Kentucky, that it has been in times past quite a Kentucky, that it has been in times past quite a kentucky. kertucky, that it has been in times past quite a common practice for Kantucky officers to go ever to Indiana officers to make the arrests if they could of Indiana officers to make the arrests if they could obtain it, and, if they couldn't, making them noon their own responsibility, and that Indiana officers to make the arrests if they could obtain it, and, if they couldn't, making them noon their own responsibility, and that Indiana officers have been coming into Kentucky and doing the same thing, no notice of these violations of territory being taken on either side. Several specific cases same thing, no notice of these violations of territory being taken on either side. Sevaral specific cases of each violations of Indiana territory by Indiana officers and of Kentucky territory by Indiana officers and of Kentucky territory by Indiana officers and of Kentucky territory by Indiana officers in the office of the Violations of White III has rehave been related to us, and in no case, so far as we can learn, has such a proceeding been made a subject of official action or complaint. It is supposed to the following the first and of the tracted his language so far as the Whig is concerted, and, if he has a proper sense of juttee, he will be first a send borne up on the increase, mature, and bring first tracted his language so far as the Whig is concerted, and if he has a proper sense of juttee, he will be first as the trianguage to the concerted to the clico of the last trianguage is carried to the clico of the possible of violations of last time of the trianguage is carried to the clico of the possible of violations of the last time of the possible of violations of the possible of violations of the last time of the possible of violations of the last time an ject of official action or complaint. It is suppo-mble, therefore, that some of the more imperfectly may have been mistaken in up-oding G.v. Mcc informed of the efficers on both shores have, in conduction of the efficers on both shores have, in conduction of the little state of the little state. may have the efficient on both shores have, in consequence of their toleration of a lawless practice, been led to think that it was not a violation of law at all. There is ground to presume that the kesturakians, who sets d Horace Bell on Saturday last, may have thought, that, in doing as others had done, they were not transcerding their proper authority. It seems to us strange, passing strange, that such a practice has been permitted to grow up letween the officials of two adjoiaing States, or even that as difficulty instance of it has been allowed to pass without prompt complaint and punishment, but the fact that the practice has been tolerated would five had by wan it, have induced us to modify considerably what we have said about the adductors of Herace Bell.

the determination, if he has formed one, of demanding Bell's adductors and leave Bell in the hands of the law of Kentacky with the assurance that justice will be done. We have no idea that there is in Hard's country any feeling calculated to prevent Bell from receiving impartial justice. If he is entitled to be d'hanged on the ground of his illegal capture, or spon any other ground, we cannot doubt that he will be discharged by due course of law; and, if he shall be convicted, we do not believe that his punishment will be excercive. Men may naturally feel some sympathy for him in consideration of the fact, that, in forcing the Brandenburg juil, he was actuated by love for a father and hrother whom he probably believed to have leave illegally selected and wrongfus y detained, but we think that all sympathy the no ill-feeling believed thin and us. Our worthy friend of the New Albany Tribone is among the loudest in demanding the purishment of those who raised Horson Bell, but he was certainly very taunting and defiant after the Bell outrage at Brandsuburg. In a very exultant article upon the subject, under the title of "A Doed of Heroism," he said, "we now see two of our whilion mechanics open. It let not in Gash—publish it not in the streets of Askelon—lest the far-famed bravery of Kantackians abould thereby be damaged." And in the same article, speaking of the Bells, he said, "they arrived safely in Corydon, a short distance from Brancan-long, where they still are, if the Kenluckians want to nich them."
